Research Interests

My research lies mostly on the interface between algebra and other fields such as geometry, homotopy theory and theoretical computer science. Loosely speaking, the idea is using tools from classical algebra to make progress in other fields, or vice versa. Some recent examples include using the geometry of certain varieties to study the number of generators of algebras, applying sheaves to construct locally testable error correcting codes, and resolving open cases of a conjecture Grothendieck and Serre by restating them in the language of quadratic and hermitian forms.

Topics in which I am interested.

Algebraic Geometry and Number Theory. Algebraic groups, group schemes, homogeneous spaces and torsors, quadratic and hermitian forms, the Witt group, Azumaya algebras (with and without involution), the Brauer group, sheaf cohomology, Bruhat–Tits theory.

Combinatorics and Computer Science. Expander graphs, high-dimensional expanders, error correcting codes, property testing.
